Burns told his story. He and the girl and the doctor formed the scheme to get $10,000 from the insurance companies. He was young and careless, and willing to take some risks. The doctor was to take $2,000, the girl $2,000, and he was to have the balance. Then he was to marry Matilda, and with her leave the country. He possed the wood hadlers on the ice, and almost immediately after took off his skates, went ashore, and struck off through the woods, which were bare of snow, and got a train at a station ten miles from home and a to Chicago. Then he went up to Wisconsin and found work in a sawmill. He corresponded with the doctor, taking an assumed name. When the company demanded the body-the doctor wrote asking for his skates, watch and the clothes he wore on that fatal morning. He sent them, but saved the letter, which was now produced in court, and in which the statement was made: "I have a good

Every child in Switzerland has his or her little sledge, and goes merrily down the snow covered hillsides and steep streets and lanes. This is unsophisticated tobogganing, but art steps in, and down the steep hillside prepares a path afteen feet wide, where the snow is carefully beaten down and smoothed, and then watered so as to make a road of ice, along which the toboggans and their riders rush at the speed of an express train. As I write the snow is falling, but up to now there has been very little. This has made tobogganing this year exceptionally dan-gerous, for it is one thing to run into a limit of tool more and quite, another against a frezen wall or over it on hard ground. The lake "run" descends three or four hundred feet at a pretty sharp angle to the lake, right across the frozen surface, of which a path has been clear-

An exhibit recent-ly made at the St. Louis exposition consisted of a number of panels mantels, etc., which had been ornamented by delicate tracery work produced by drawng over a sketched design a sharp iron oint, which had been heated sufficientto char the wood. By clever manipulation the effect of light and shade was produced, according to the degree to which the instrument was heated. Landscapes, portraits and an almost endless variety of other designs appeared in the collection, and they excited the admiration of all art lovers. The work is not a all difficult and can, be readily done by any good artist after a little practice. It years since I have felt sure that I was bsolutely alone with a girl-an environment necessary for sentimental demon-strations. But to particularize, It is not long since I became unusually interested in a young woman of my acquaintance. Perhaps I was in love with her. If not, I know that I might have become so. I said her rather marked attention for nearly a year, but in my numerous visits to ber house there was never an opportunity-for anything but the most formal conversation. Usually her father sat in the library across the hall in full hearing -if not in view-of us. No chance to shut a door, At the parior door-portieres; dining room door-portieres; and never an opportunity for that sense of private tete a tete which gives a man inspiration

Now, it is my idea that the time when mutual love is first acknowledged should made the most of, and not to be thrown away by any such insensate proceeding as a proposal by letter or even to be risked at unpropitious seasons, when in 50 Mixed Mattresses terruption is probable or possible. Therefore, I did not tell my love with papa reading his paper in the adjoining room, or with the servant fumbling at the side board in the dining room, with only a thickness of curtain between her and us. I did not tell my love while all the doors were wide open and the sisters were netive in the upper halls, and I could hear the brother in his room overhead dress ing to go out. Quick Witted Birds

Some birds are gifted with a sense of observation appreaching to something very like reasoning faculties, as the following ancedote proves: At a gentle man's house in Staffordshire the pheasants are fed out of one of those boxes the lid of which rises with the pressure of the pheasant standing on the rail in front of the box. A water ben, observthe weight of the bird being insufficient to raise the lid of the box, so as to enable it to get at the corn, the water hen kept jumping on the rail to give additiona impetus to its weight.
